Procurement of Teletype Paper

In accordance with our telephone conversation this morning, I am attaching a copy of a teletype message received from [REDACTED] in [REDACTED]

It certainly seems that procurement of teletype paper here in this country for use in our [REDACTED] office is quite impractical. The difference in the [REDACTED] machines makes American paper unsuitable and very little, if any, saving would be effected as far as price is concerned, especially in view of transportation and handling costs at this end.

It is therefore requested that you authorize procurement of needed teletype paper supplies locally in [REDACTED] as has been the practice in the past.
